Journal

Real tips, not recycled lists.

Las Vegas isn't a city for basic advice. These articles go beyond the surface — showing you what to skip, when to go, where to eat, how to save, and how to experience Vegas without wasting time or money. It's fast-moving, detail-packed, and built around what's actually happening in the city right now.

What to Avoid on the Las Vegas Strip

Not everything on the Strip is worth your time — or your wallet. The costumed characters crowding the sidewalks? They're just there for tips. The $35 daiquiris with plastic tubes? Skip them. And those “free” club passes handed out by guys on the corners? You'll still wait an hour to get in.

Instead, walk with a plan. Know where the bridges and escalators are — they're the key to skipping long, sweaty waits at intersections. Stick to casino bars for better drinks and avoid restaurants with hostesses standing outside — that's your red flag.

The Strip is loaded with great spots, but not all of them are obvious. The further you are from street level, the better the view, the quieter the space, and often, the stronger the drink.

Best Time of Year to Visit Las Vegas

Las Vegas is open 365 days a year — but that doesn't mean every week is ideal. Summer heat is brutal. Winter nights can be colder than you'd expect. The sweet spot? Spring and fall.

March through May and October through early November hit the perfect balance. Pool weather is solid, crowds are manageable, and prices haven't spiked. Weekdays offer the best hotel deals and fewer lineups across the board. Avoid major convention weeks if you're not attending — they drive up rates citywide.

Mid-January and early December tend to be surprisingly cheap — low tourist traffic, but everything's still running. And if you want the biggest energy? First weekends of March Madness, Halloween, and New Year's Eve are peak chaos (in a good way).

How Much Does a Vegas Trip Really Cost?

Vegas isn't cheap — but it doesn't have to be a financial disaster either. A solid 3-day trip lands around $1,000–$1,500 per person, depending on how you play it.

Mid-range hotels average $200–$300 per night once you include resort fees. Meals can range from a $15 breakfast sandwich to a $250 dinner at a steakhouse — but there's a lot of ground in between. Lyft rides are cheaper than taxis and show tickets are always more expensive last minute.

Want to save? Book hotel rooms Sunday–Thursday, pregame before clubs, and look for group dinner spots like Eataly or Din Tai Fung. Skip bottle service unless you're splitting with a group. And never pay for club entry if you're on the guestlist — the apps work.

How to Choose the Right Hotel for Your Trip

There's no one-size-fits-all hotel in Vegas. What works for a solo traveller probably won't fit a couple's getaway or a birthday weekend with seven friends. Choose your hotel based on location, noise level, and the type of energy you want around you.

Want to party? The Cosmopolitan hits the mark with clubs, balconies, and views. Looking for something quiet and clean? Vdara or Virgin Hotels offer peace without being far from the Strip. If you're going with family, Mandalay Bay has one of the best pool areas and spacious rooms.

Also factor in walkability. If you hate walking 20 minutes between dinner and bed, skip the mega resorts. And always check if there are events or construction scheduled — they can change the feel of a stay instantly.

Where to Eat Late in Las Vegas

Late-night food in Vegas isn't just an option — it's a necessity. After a show, a night out, or a long gambling session, you'll want something fast, good, and open past midnight.

Start with Secret Pizza at The Cosmopolitan — no signage, no frills, just classic New York-style slices done right. Tacos El Gordo hits the spot for legit Mexican (especially the adobada). If you want a late-night sit-down, Peppermill Restaurant & Lounge delivers a retro Vegas vibe with strong pours and big portions.

Also worth noting: a lot of casino cafés run 24/7, but not all are created equal. Ellis Island BBQ serves up solid ribs and beer until late, and The Henry at The Cosmopolitan is one of the best late-night menus on the Strip.

Casino Etiquette for First-Timers

You don't need to be a high roller to walk into a Vegas casino — but knowing the basic rules will keep you from sticking out. Start with the chips: never touch someone else's stack. Don't hand your money to the dealer mid-hand. And don't try to take a photo at a live table — they'll shut that down fast.

If you're unsure how to play? Ask, but do it respectfully and between hands. Blackjack dealers are usually helpful if you're cool. Tip your dealer if you're winning. Even a couple dollars goes a long way. And keep the pace — if you hold up the game, you'll get eye rolls (or worse).

Want to learn before sitting down? Hit the electronic tables or find a low-stakes one in the morning when it's quiet. You'll learn faster — and cheaper.

How to Do Vegas Solo

Travelling alone in Las Vegas sounds odd to some people — until you try it. It's one of the best cities in the world to explore solo. You don't need anyone's schedule, you can bounce between venues as you please, and you're never short on conversation.

Stay somewhere central but calm — like NoMad, Vdara, or even The Cromwell. Spend your mornings walking the Strip or relaxing by the pool. Afternoons can be spa sessions, sports betting, or gallery hopping. Evenings are yours: a show, rooftop cocktail, or solo seat at a blackjack table.

Bonus: Clubs and lounges often let solo guests skip the line. And bartenders in Vegas tend to go the extra mile if you're flying solo.

Getting Around Las Vegas Without a Car

Driving in Vegas isn't fun — parking costs, one-way roads, and confusing Strip access make it a headache. Good news? You don't need a car.

Use Lyft or Uber for short hops. They're quicker, cheaper, and less stressful than taxis. The Monorail connects major hotels along the east side of the Strip. Free trams run between properties like Bellagio–Aria–Park MGM and Mandalay Bay–Luxor–Excalibur.

Walking is doable, but don't underestimate the heat or the distance between casinos. What looks like “just across the street” is often a 15-minute walk. Plan your day in zones — north Strip, mid Strip, Downtown — to avoid backtracking.

Underrated Spots Most Visitors Miss

Step off the Strip and you'll find the real personality of Las Vegas. Start with Fremont East — it's not just flashing lights. Places like The Laundry Room (hidden inside Commonwealth) and Velvetene Rabbit offer top-tier cocktails in intimate settings.

AREA15 is an immersive art and experience warehouse that mixes galleries, VR, and nightlife under one roof. Downtown Container Park is great for daytime drinks, tacos, and people-watching. If you're into the odd and bizarre, Zak Bagans' Haunted Museum will leave an impression.

Vegas isn't just casinos — but most people never find out. You're not most people.

Best Buffets in Las Vegas (Ranked by Quality, Not Hype)

Buffets are back in Vegas, and they're better than ever. Bacchanal Buffet at Caesars Palace still leads the pack with its massive variety and upscale finishes. Wicked Spoon at The Cosmopolitan offers small plated portions, perfect for sampling. The Buffet at Wynn is refined and full of fresh seafood.

If you want something solid without breaking the bank, MGM Grand and Bellagio still hold their own — just go early to beat the lines. And if you're staying Downtown, Main Street Station's buffet is a quiet hit for under $25.

Always go hungry. And skip breakfast that day.

Best Adults-Only Hotels in Las Vegas

Peace, parties, and no kids in sight.

Las Vegas can be wild, loud, and packed — especially around hotel pools. If you're looking for a trip without screaming toddlers or family crowds, adults-only hotels give you space to unwind or turn up, your way.

Circa Resort & Casino (Downtown)

This 21+ property changed the game when it opened. The entire hotel — from the lobby to the pool — is adults-only. Stadium Swim is a rooftop pool deck with six pools, massive sports screens, cabanas, and bar service. Rooms are modern, sleek, and built for comfort. The casino is polished, and the location on Fremont Street keeps you close to great food and local nightlife.

The Cromwell (Central Strip)

Boutique in size but big on style. The Cromwell is one of the few hotels on the Strip with a strict 21+ policy. It's home to Drai's — a popular dayclub and nightclub combo — so the energy is high, but not overwhelming. Rooms have a bold, Parisian-style design. Perfect for couples or solo travellers who want the Strip without the family crowd.

The Lexi (Off-Strip)

Formerly the Artisan, The Lexi is newly rebranded as a cannabis-friendly, adults-only boutique hotel just off Sahara. The vibe is relaxed, alternative, and locally rooted. It won't suit everyone, but if you're looking for a low-key stay with no families in sight — and a smoke-friendly pool scene — it's worth considering.

Why go adults-only?

- No loud kids at the pool or next door
- Poolside drinks feel like vacation, not recess
- Hotels cater their amenities and events to an adult crowd
- You get more privacy and less chaos

Tip: These spots book out fast on weekends. If you're planning a couples trip or party weekend, lock your room early.

Family-Friendly Hotels in Las Vegas

Big rooms, fun pools, and kid-friendly dining — without skipping comfort.

Las Vegas isn't just for nightlife. With the right hotel, it's a great spot for a family trip — offering pools, shows, food options, and attractions all in one place. These hotels strike the balance between entertaining for kids and comfortable for adults.

Mandalay Bay

Mandalay Bay has one of the best pool complexes on the Strip — including a lazy river, wave pool, and sandy beach area. The Shark Reef Aquarium adds a built-in daytime activity. Rooms are spacious, quiet, and modern. Bonus: It's connected via tram to Luxor and Excalibur, giving you more food and activity options without needing a rideshare.

The Mirage

Central location, tropical theming, and a pool that's perfect for families. The Secret Garden and Dolphin Habitat used to be a huge hit (check current availability), and the on-site shows like The Beatles LOVE are family favourites. Rooms are comfortable and relatively affordable by Strip standards.

Excalibur

It's not subtle — this is a medieval castle-themed hotel built for kids. Affordable rooms, large arcade, food court, and easy access to tram lines make this ideal for families on a budget. It's not luxurious, but it gets the job done with the energy you need for a first Vegas trip with kids.

Tahiti Village (Off-Strip)

If you're looking for something slower-paced, Tahiti Village offers condo-style suites with full kitchens, plus a lazy river and zero-entry pool. No casino, less foot traffic, and more space — ideal for multi-day family trips or those with young kids.

What to look for in a family hotel:

- Spacious rooms (suites or adjoining options)
- Pools with shallow areas and shade
- On-site food courts or kid-friendly restaurants
- Proximity to monorail or free trams
- Quiet floors, slower elevators, and good security

Book early during school holidays — the best rooms go fast, and prices rise quickly around spring break and summer.

Best Hotels in Las Vegas for Business Travel

Reliable Wi-Fi, calm energy, and easy access to the Convention Center.

Las Vegas is one of the top business and event destinations in North America. Whether you're attending a convention, hosting meetings, or extending a work trip into the weekend, these hotels deliver solid infrastructure, smooth logistics, and enough calm to stay productive.

Vdara Hotel & Spa

Vdara is non-gaming, non-smoking, and extremely well positioned just behind the Strip. Rooms are modern suites with kitchenettes, making it a great pick for longer stays. There's no casino noise, the lobby is quiet, and the location gives you fast access to Aria, Bellagio, and Park MGM.

Conrad Las Vegas at Resorts World

Part of the multi-brand Resorts World complex, Conrad is the most business-friendly of the three. Rooms are crisp and clean, with comfortable desks and smart features. The lobby is calm, check-in is quick, and you're within walking distance of the Convention Center. Plus, you have access to all the dining in the complex.

Virgin Hotels Las Vegas

Off-Strip, modern, and refreshingly laid-back. Rooms come with strong Wi-Fi, plenty of workspace, and the property has multiple quiet lounges and casual meeting spots. Free parking, no resort fees, and reliable service make it one of the best options for remote work or low-key business trips.

Four Seasons Hotel Las Vegas

For high-end business stays, Four Seasons sits on the top floors of Mandalay Bay, with its own entrance and private atmosphere. It's removed from the casino floor, has direct access to the convention space, and offers true five-star service. Ideal for executives or business travellers who want the Strip without the chaos.

Things that matter when you're working in Vegas:

- Fast elevators and quiet floors
- Strong Wi-Fi and good in-room desks
- Non-casino lobbies for easy meetups
- Quick access to Uber pickup zones
- Business centres or lounge space to recharge

Whether you're in town for CES, NAB, or a quarterly meetup, these hotels help you stay focused — and still enjoy a solid dinner when you're off the clock.

The Best Casino Hotels in Las Vegas

Where to stay if you want the full Vegas casino experience, day and night.

Las Vegas is built on casino culture. The best casino hotels don't just give you a place to crash — they offer everything in one place: slots, table games, restaurants, shows, pools, and late-night energy that never fades.

If you're heading to Vegas to play (or just soak in the scene), here's your guide to the top casino hotels in Las Vegas — from iconic resorts on the Strip to modern Downtown favourites that go beyond gaming.

The Venetian Resort Las Vegas

Luxury meets scale. The Venetian's casino floor is one of the largest in the city, with rows of slots, high-limit tables, and a wide variety of games — all set under grand Italian-inspired architecture. The poker room is sleek, and the sports book is massive. The attached Grand Canal Shoppes, upscale restaurants, and spa make it easy to spend an entire weekend here without leaving.

Why stay here:

- Elegant all-suite rooms
- 120,000+ square foot casino
- Easy access to The Palazzo and food options
- Popular with poker players and luxury travellers

Perfect for: Couples, high rollers, long weekends on the Strip

Bellagio Hotel & Casino

Refined and timeless, Bellagio delivers an elevated casino experience. The poker room here is legendary, attracting both pros and big spenders. The floor itself is quieter than most, with a more traditional, luxury feel. Combine that with the Fountains of Bellagio, upscale dining (like Le Cirque and Picasso), and the beautiful conservatory, and you've got a true casino resort experience.

Why stay here:

- Premium table games and high-limit slots
- Famed poker room
- Central Strip location
- Balanced energy — busy but not overwhelming

Perfect for: Casino regulars, couples, special occasions

Caesars Palace

Caesars is a casino hotel through and through. The gaming floor is one of the most active in Las Vegas, offering everything from low-limit blackjack to high-stakes rooms tucked behind velvet ropes. It's loud, energetic, and packed with food, entertainment, and action at all hours. This is what people mean when they talk about classic Vegas.

Why stay here:

- Massive casino floor with wide game variety
- Central Strip access to shows, clubs, restaurants
- The Forum Shops + celebrity chef dining
- Omnia Nightclub for late-night options

Perfect for: First-timers, party weekends, nonstop energy seekers

Circa Resort & Casino (Downtown)

A new take on the modern casino hotel, Circa is adults-only and fully designed around the gaming experience. The sportsbook is the largest in North America — a multi-level, stadium-style setup with live odds and endless screens. The casino is spotless, well-lit, and high-tech, with fast drink service and upbeat music. The vibe is cool, not chaotic.

Why stay here:

- 21+ property (no kids allowed, anywhere)
- Rooftop pool deck with gaming screens
- Clean, sleek, and modern design
- Close to Fremont Street's best bars

Perfect for: Groups, sports fans, adults-only trips

The Cosmopolitan of Las Vegas

More boutique than mega, but still very much a casino resort. The Cosmopolitan's casino floor is stylish and modern, with a mix of table games, slots, and private gaming rooms. It's a favorite for younger travellers thanks to the Marquee Nightclub and the party atmosphere, but it's also surprisingly functional for gamers who want fast-paced tables and strong cocktail service.

Why stay here:

- Vibrant, social casino floor
- Rooftop pool with DJs and drinks
- Balcony rooms with Strip views
- Walkable to nearby casino hotels

Perfect for: Party weekends, solo travellers, girls/guys trips

Wynn Las Vegas

Wynn is polished, quiet, and beautifully designed — and its casino reflects that. Expect a more relaxed floor with well-dressed dealers, high-end service, and a comfortable pace. The poker room is high-end and private. It's one of the few places where you'll find players in suits and cocktails served in glassware, not plastic cups.

Why stay here:

- High-limit rooms and quiet floor
- One of the best poker rooms in the city
- Designer shopping and fine dining on-site
- Exceptional customer service

Perfect for: Executive trips, seasoned casino players, couples

What Makes a Great Casino Hotel in Las Vegas?

Not all casino resorts are built the same. Here's what separates the best:

- A large, diverse casino floor with fair odds and game variety
- Access to other key experiences (pools, spas, clubs, restaurants)
- Central location or convenient access to other casinos
- Smart layout that lets you transition easily from gaming to downtime
- Strong cocktail service, clean facilities, and fast table turnover

If you're planning a trip built around table games, slots, or sports betting, choosing the right casino hotel can seriously impact your overall experience. Being able to play, eat, swim, and sleep without needing a cab or shuttle? That's the real Vegas luxury.

Final Thoughts on Casino Resorts in Vegas

Las Vegas is still the capital of casino travel — and staying at the right hotel makes all the difference. Whether you want round-the-clock action, a polished poker room, or just a place to throw $20 into the slots with a good drink in hand, casino hotels in Las Vegas deliver. Pick the one that fits your pace — and remember, even a casual player deserves a place that knows how to do gaming right.

Vegas Guide

Everything you need to know before you go.

Las Vegas is unlike anywhere else. It's a city that runs on 24-hour energy, midweek parties, high-end dining, five-minute weddings, and enough shows, hotels, and chaos to overwhelm just about anyone. But with the right prep, Las Vegas is one of the easiest — and most entertaining — cities to visit.

This guide covers everything you need to know before you land: from transport to tipping, weather to what to pack, and how to do Vegas right without losing time, money, or your mind.

When to Visit Las Vegas

Las Vegas is open year-round, but some months are better than others.

Best months:

- March to May
- October to early November

Why: Pool weather is ideal, crowds are manageable, and hotel rates are lower than summer.

Avoid: July and August if you hate the heat. It hits 110°F and barely cools at night. December is great for deals, but pools are closed and some shows go dark.

Where to Stay

Your hotel sets the tone for your entire trip. Here's how to pick smart:

- On the Strip: Best for first-timers and short trips. Everything is walkable (sort of).
- Downtown (Fremont Street): Cheaper, louder, more local. Great for bar crawls and casino energy.
- Off-Strip: Calmer. Good for business travel, long stays, or trips where you don't want to be surrounded by tourists 24/7.

Need help deciding? Check our [Where to Stay] page for hotel breakdowns by trip type.

Getting Around

You don't need a car. Seriously. Parking is expensive, traffic is constant, and walking + rideshare covers almost everything.

- Walking: The Strip is long. Blocks are bigger than they look. Wear good shoes.
  - Lyft/Uber: Reliable and cheaper than taxis.
  - Monorail: Covers major Strip stops (especially east-side resorts).
  - Free Trams: Operate between a few hotels (like Bellagio–Park MGM–Aria).
  - Buses: The Deuce runs the Strip 24/7. Affordable but slow.

What to Pack

Vegas is extreme — air conditioning inside, blazing heat outside. Think versatility.

- Comfortable shoes (you'll walk more than you think)
  - Light layers
  - Swimwear
  - A "night out" outfit (clubs enforce dress codes)
  - Portable charger (Strip signage kills your battery)
  - Sunscreen — even in winter
  - ID (you'll get carded everywhere, even at 40)

Money + Budget Tips

Vegas can go from affordable to expensive fast. Here's how to keep it under control:

- Use ATMs inside casinos — they're cheaper than convenience store ones
  - Always ask for split checks before you order
  - Happy hours are everywhere, especially off the Strip
  - Buffets are worth it if you eat big — skip if you're light
  - Casinos offer free drinks while you gamble — tip the server and drink slowly
  - Resort fees aren't included in base hotel prices — budget $35–$50 extra per night

Tipping in Las Vegas

Tipping isn't optional — it's expected.

- Bartenders: $1–$2 per drink
- Valet: $3–$5
- Housekeeping: $3–$5/day

- Dealers: $5–$10 per session if you’re winning
- Bellhops: $2–$3 per bag

Tip well and you’ll get better service, faster drinks, and friendlier everything.

Vegas Do’s and Don’ts

Do:

- Book dinner and shows in advance
- Carry cash for tips, games, and emergencies
- Stay hydrated — desert heat is sneaky
- Take breaks. The Strip will still be there after your nap.

Don’t:

- Walk barefoot in your hotel room (trust us)
  - Try to “wing it” on club entry — get on a guest list or book ahead
  - Assume you’ll win — treat gambling as part of the entertainment
  - Stay too far from where you plan to spend your time

Best Free Things to Do in Vegas

Vegas can be surprisingly affordable if you know where to look.

- Bellagio Fountain Show
  - Fremont Street light show
  - The Volcano at The Mirage (still active — check times)
  - Conservatory & Botanical Gardens at Bellagio
  - Art displays at Aria and The Shops at Crystals
  - People-watching (it’s a sport in this city)

A Few Final Tips

- Most people underestimate the heat, the walking, and the cost
  - There’s more to Vegas than the Strip — explore Fremont, Chinatown, and local restaurants
  - Drink water, eat something before clubbing, and don’t overbook your schedule
  - Check your hotel map before you arrive — some lobbies are a 10-minute walk from the street

About

Built for travellers who don't want to waste time in Las Vegas.

Vega Viz was created to give real travellers the tools, insights, and planning support they actually need when visiting Las Vegas. No clickbait lists. No recycled reviews. No sales pitch behind every “tip.”

We've spent enough time in Vegas to know what works — and what really doesn't. From overpriced buffets to overhyped hotel rooms, confusing Strip layouts to club nights that don't go as planned, we've made the mistakes so you don't have to.

This site is about clarity, value, and smart planning. Whether you're here for a weekend blowout, a poker run, a solo recharge, or a family trip that actually works — we build guides, hotel breakdowns, and itineraries designed to save you time, money, and frustration.

What You'll Find Here

- In-depth hotel reviews by trip type (not just star ratings)
- Real-world itineraries based on pace, interests, and budget
- Travel tips from people who've actually stayed, played, and walked the Strip
- Journal posts that focus on timing, costs, and what not to do
- Smart breakdowns of casino hotels, family hotels, adults-only spots, and more

No recycled content. No SEO-stuffing. No 20-page blog posts that say nothing.

Why We Built Vega Viz

We got tired of websites that felt like travel brochures — full of generic praise and no actual help. Vegas is a fast-moving city. What worked last year might not work next month. And if you land unprepared, you'll pay for it — in time, in money, or in a hangover that hits way harder than it should.

This site exists to fix that. To show you how to avoid the traps, find the fun, and build a trip that fits your style — not someone else's sponsored itinerary.

Who It's For

- First-timers who want to hit the ground running
  - Return visitors ready to explore beyond the basics
  - Solo travellers, couples, party crews, and families
  - Anyone who wants their Las Vegas trip to be sharp, smooth, and memorable for the right reasons
